Yes, it is cold, but Liebchen, a Dachshund, didn't worry about it as she went outdoors in Chicago for a morning walk with her ears flapping in the cold breeze, but bundled in a wool head piece and muffler. The temperature in the area dipped to a -20 today.

Two Red China Leaders 'Commit Suicide'--Report

TOKYO (AP)—A wall newspaper put up in Peking by a unit of China's army reported today that Lo Jui-ching, purged general staff chief, and Vice Premier Po I-Po committed suicide.

Japanese correspondents in the Chinese capital said the "extra" issued by the 235th Army Detachment, also reported Teng Hsiao-ping, Communist party general secretary and one of the chief targets of Mao Tse-tung's purge, and Yang Hsü-feng, president of the Supreme People's Court, attempted suicide.

Earlier today one of Mao's reports. There have been several such in Hong Kong recently. Rumors swept Peking in mid-December that Lo had killed himself, and a Red Guard who defected said in Taipei Dec. 27 that Lo jumped off a building but only broke a leg.

Packinghouse Integration Aim Of BCFGA's Executive

More complete control of the entire fruit industry by growers themselves was seen Thursday in a request for a plan of "integration" of Valley fruit packinghouse operations.

Hubert Pierlot, newest member of the BCFGA executive, said control is the "root of the matter."

"We now control production and selling but not packinghouse operations," he said. "If there were full control by growers it would be better."

Mr. Pierlot was speaking to a resolution calling for approval in principle of a central packing authority and an overall plan of "conversion and integration" which would evolve into a modern mechanized system.

The resolution which was adopted by BCFGA convention delegates also asked that a plebiscite requiring a two-thirds majority be held upon completion of the plan.

Sponsoring the plan was John Faynor of Creston who said "we've got too many little enterprises there must be a more corporate image."

"Marketing and net returns for our produce is the prime factor and the reason we en-

They May Flonk Dwiles...

BUNGAY, England (AP)—The landlord of The Three Tuns Tavern asked a Bungay magistrate Thursday for permission to keep his pub open later than usual for the sale of the Waverley Valley Dwile Flonking Association.

"Dwile flonking?" said Magistrate Douglas Hewitt. "What is dwile flonking?"

"I don't know," said the publican, Charles Ross, 45. "It's a fine old English game that has been going on for the last 400 years."

Ky Triumphs Down Under

BRISBANE (Reuters)—South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky arrived here by air today amid growing signs his much-criticized five-day Australian tour was turning into a personal triumph.

A crowd of between 300 and 400 lined up at the barrier of Brisbane airport waving placards saying: "Give Marshal Ky the keys to the city" and "Welcome Marshal Ky."

The 35-year-old Vietnamese air vice-marshal and his wife departed from the official program to mingle and shake hands with the crowd.

Instead of going into the air terminal, they walked across to the spectators and went down the line shaking hands. The first direct contact they have had with the Australian people during their tour, now in its third day.

WATCHES SOLDIERS Arriving in Brisbane, Ky went to see Australia's jungle-training school at Canungra. He drove the 80 miles from Brisbane to the school and was briefed by senior officers before watching a demonstration. The 7th Battalion of the Royal Australian Regiment currently is training at the centre before going to Vietnam.

Meanwhile a writer in the Sydney Morning Herald says the Vietnamese premier "shattered his Australian image as a swashbuckling, hell-for-leather pilot who knows a lot about fighting and little else."

The writer, James Cunningham, says Ky during his Canberra visit Thursday "emerged as a serious young man who appears to know a great deal about a large number of things."

Storm Hits Prairies Hard

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A storm moved across the Prairies late Thursday night, leaving in its wake disrupted communications systems and severe cold.

Quebec joined the West in the deep freeze Thursday as an arctic cold front moved south, dropping temperatures to 26 below zero in Quebec City—lowest for the day since 1943.

The West Coast escaped the cold blast, but in Victoria Thursday, two inches of rain was followed by gale-force winds gusting to 60 miles an hour. Hundreds of basements were reported flooded and power lines were down.

Southeastern Alberta, where a chinook was in progress, also escaped the frigid temperatures which have covered most of Canada for the last two days.

Blizzard warnings were continued from Alberta to Manitoba for today with cloudy skies, snow and blowing snow forecast.

HIT BY BLIZZARD Blizzard conditions prevailed in northern Alberta, Edmonton expected a high of five degrees today and Calgary faced zero temperatures.

In Saskatchewan, the blizzard caused power failures in the Regina area, knocking out the Canadian Pacific Telecommunications network for almost an hour.

'CO-OPERATION' ON COLLEGE SOUGHT AT BCFGA CONVENTION

One of the largest groups of taxpayers in the Okanagan Thursday asked for "co-operation" in taking early steps toward establishing an Okanagan Regional College.

A late resolution adopted without discussion at the final session of the BCFGA convention called for co-operation between the regional college council, Valley representatives of civic government, the department of education and other groups.

The resolution said controversy such as was experienced over the recent regional college referendum is not only costly but detrimental to the economy and future of this Valley.

It said also "we may not necessarily agree with the present land formula for education but we do subscribe to the principle of modern education in a modern world."

Dead Viet Cong Had Message On Captured French Woman

BAC TIEN, South Vietnam (Reuters)—A French woman journalist who has been missing for three days was reported alive and in the hands of local Viet Cong guerrillas today.

South Vietnamese Army officials said local peasants and Viet Cong suspects told questions that Michele Ray, 28, was captured by the Viet Cong in her white car about three miles north of this isolated airfield Tuesday.

Despite an intensive air search of this area near Bong Son, 300 miles northwest of Saigon, no traces of the tall, auburn-haired former model-nor her car were found.

South Vietnamese officers said a message concerning her was discovered on the body of a Viet Cong who blew up himself and four comrades with a grenade when government paratroopers stormed a cave in which they were hiding.

The message, addressed to the "higher Viet Cong command" and as translated by a South Vietnamese officer, said: "Woman captured driving small white car with two students. She says she is a French newswoman. She has a camera but she may be working for the Americans."

The report was written in Vietnamese on a small piece of paper ripped from a notebook.

De Gaulle Likely To Say 'Non' To Britain's Entry Into ECM

PARIS (Reuters)—Britain's prospects of entering the European Common Market were rated in official French circles today—four days before British Prime Minister Wilson's crucial talks with French President de Gaulle—as "virtually nil."

The French say that while they may speak more frankly than their partners in estimating how far Britain will go in identifying itself with Europe's international policy, the other Common Market countries are equally skeptical.

France, which maintained Britain was not ready to join when it made its first abortive attempt four years ago, still holds the key to the success of any new effort.

Wilson's visit to Paris next week—part of a probing tour of the six Common Market capitals—will play a major part in his decision whether to open full-scale negotiations for British entry.

During a visit to Rome this week Wilson said the Common Market would gain immense benefits—economic and political—from any British membership.

Italian government ministers gave strong backing to Britain's preliminary moves, which also have been publicly welcomed in other Common Market capitals.

French officials said they will defend the essential interests of the Common market by insisting on a thorough examination of consequences of British membership.

They agreed that reaction to British membership seems less unfavorable in the other capitals, but they were satisfied their partners will resist any attempt to divide them on this question.

Exasperated Grits Assert They Won't Lose Vote Again

OTTAWA (CP)—The government made clear in the Commons Thursday it doesn't intend to lose any more votes on its bill to establish a national transportation policy.

An emergency party caucus heard harsh criticism for Liberal MPs who failed to show up in the Commons Wednesday, when the Conservatives succeeded by a single vote in defeating a section of the bill calling for a review within three years of the Crown's Pacific rates.

Government members also were whisked away from one Commons committee to take their seats in the Commons. And a second committee was cancelled at government request for the same reason.

At immediate result was a resounding defeat for the Conservatives when they moved on amendment Thursday aimed at assuring the Atlantic province of special consideration in setting new rail rates.

The amendment was defeated 68 to 41.

Object Would Be To Limit Size Of Anti-Missile Defence

WASHINGTON (AP)—The state department disclosed today that the United States has started talks with the Soviet Union on the anti-ballistic missile problem since Dobrynin's return to Washington from a visit to Moscow three weeks ago.

McCloskey said he could not rule out discussion of other subjects such as continuing U.S.-Soviet consideration of a proposed treaty to block the spread of nuclear weapons. But he left no doubt the focus of the Rusk talks with Dobrynin had been on the anti-ballistic missile problem.

Press Officer Robert J. McCloskey told a press conference

Next Tory Leadership Scene Will Be Briefing For Meeting

OTTAWA (CP)—The next big scene in the Progressive Conservative leadership drama will unfold in Montreal Feb. 3 and 4 when the party's executive committee meets to make plans for a leadership convention.

Party sources predict a clash between the John Diefenbaker and Dalton Camp factions over the date, the place and the composition of the convention. Both sides feel these three factors will strongly influence the outcome of the leadership race.

Former defence minister Gordon Churchill, one of Mr. Diefenbaker's closest lieutenants, said Thursday he favors an April convention in his home city of Winnipeg. Other Diefenbaker loyalists echoed this view.

Party President Dalton Camp said in a CBC television interview Thursday night he hopes the convention will be held in Montreal after Expo 67 winds up Oct. 24.

A spring convention would involve many advantages for Mr. Diefenbaker's supporters. The Prairie region is the Chief's political bastion and thousands of his admirers could be expected to descend on Winnipeg.

Mr. Diefenbaker's allies privately say they consider Premier John Roberts of Ontario as their most dangerous rival, despite his frequent statement that he is not a leadership candidate.

A spring convention would virtually rule out a "draft-Roberts" movement since the premier would be busy campaigning for re-election in Ontario, the pro-Diefenbaker strategists say. An early convention would also hurt Davie Fulton (Kamloops) and George Hees (Northumberland) in their view, because of the limited time to woo grass-root delegates.

Ministers Deny Any Curbs Imposed On Aid For Hanoi

OTTAWA (CP)—Cabinet ministers denied in the Commons today that Air Canada has refused to carry medical supplies bound for North Vietnam or that drug companies have been ordered by their U.S. parents not to sell medical supplies to Quakers for shipment to North Vietnam.

Transport Minister Pickersgill said international regulations prevented Air Canada from meeting a Quaker request to carry free of charge or at a reduced rate medical supplies to Moscow for shipment to Vietnam.

He said that Aeroflot, the Russian airline which makes a weekly Moscow-Montreal flight, is bound by no such regulations.

Mr. Pickersgill also told NDP Leader Douglas that Air Canada can carry the supplies if the Quakers pay the full freight rate.

He said International Air Transport Association regulations allow a reduced or free rate for medical supplies going to disaster areas, but not to zones of military operation.

SAYS U.S. DENIES Trade Minister Winters said both the United States treasury and state departments have denied ordering U.S. drug companies to tell Canadian subsidiaries not to sell drugs to Quakers for shipment to North Vietnam.

He was replying to David Lewis (NDP-York South), who asked what action had been taken on a report quoting a U.S. treasury official as saying his department had forbidden Canadian subsidiaries of U.S. drug companies to make such sales.

Mr. Winters said the Canadian embassy in Washington got in touch with U.S. state and treasury officials at his request Thursday and received the denial of the report.

"The U.S. is well aware of our attitude in this regard," said Mr. Winters, adding that Quakers would have no trouble getting drugs from Canadian firms.

Nanaimo Crowd Stands In Rain But Can't Board History Train

NANAIMO (CP)—Dozens of people who stood in the pouring rain for a glimpse of displays in Canada's Confederation train trip across the Strait of Georgia to Vancouver, the third stop on its nation-wide tour.

Since it was first opened in Victoria Jan. 9, a total of 77,360 Vancouver Island residents and visitors saw the displays depicting Canadian history from the ice age to the present, and a glimpse into the future.

Grand Coulee Expansion 'Not Sequel to Treaty'

Expansion of power production at the Grand Coulee dam in Washington State is not a result of the Columbia River treaty, Mines Minister Pepin advised the Commons Thursday. As a result, Canada would not ask for additional benefits from the treaty. He said the U.S. plan to expand Coulee output to 2,200,000 kilowatts from 2,000,000 is designed to meet short term peak loads. The power would be generated from Coulee storage water, not from storage dams on the Columbia River in Canada. Mr. Pepin made the statements in a reply to H. W. Herridge (NDP—Kootenay West) who immediately protested that the treaty allows the U.S. to call for water stored in Canada's Arrow Lakes to bolster Coulee storage. The minister said water being stored in Canada was used as a seasonal service.

MR. MACEachen
... rables studied

The prestige of Christopher Columbus as discoverer of America faces new knocks today in London when the Vinland map, said to prove the prior claims of Viking explorers, goes on show at the British Museum. A British publisher has announced a book purporting to show that Welsh Prince Madoc in 1170 reached Alabama 322 years before Columbus' discovery. And Hungarian scholars are producing a book with another ancient map supporting the case for the Vikings.

Health Minister MacEachen said Thursday in the Commons that studies are being made to perfect anti-rabies vaccine. In reply to Reynold Rapp (PC—Humboldt-Melfort-Tisdale) the minister said there are unusual cases when the present vaccine is not effective. Mr. Rapp referred to the death of a four-year-old girl near Ottawa last week.

Gravestones of old friends are no place to meet old foes, the national president of the Royal Canadian Legion said in a reiteration of his opposition to German veterans attending ceremonies Aug. 19 that will mark the 25th anniversary of the Dieppe raid. "At another time and in another place, Canadian and German veterans may get together in friendship," President Ron MacBeath of Moncton, N.B., said in a statement.

Mayor Tom Campbell of Vancouver said Thursday he should receive today a copy of a controversial report on crime with in the Vancouver police force. He said the three appointed members of the police commission agreed to give him the report with "no strings attached."

Charles C. Tillinghast, president of Trans World Airlines, and Conrad N. Hilton, chairman of Hilton International Co., said Thursday they have reached an agreement in principle on a merger plan.

A new industry, announced recently by Mrs. Pat Jordan, minister without portfolio in the provincial government, will be located in Spallumcheen. The new industry will employ 12 people and will be operated by Timber Preserves Industry Ltd. and will build culverts. The plant will start operation by the end of February.

Albert Otis Birch, the 96-year-old millionaire who married his 59-year-old nurse, has been declared mentally competent in Pasadena, Calif. Birch, now living in Odesa, Tex., was granted permission to transfer conservatorship of his estate from the Security First National Bank in Pasadena to the U.S. National Bank of San Diego. Security First National director and Birch's niece, Louise Smith Hopkins, had contended Birch was mentally incompetent and that Birch's second wife, the former Pearl Choate, married him to get his property.

The trial of John Thomas McCready, 48, a suspended policeman charged with theft and possession of stolen property, was postponed today until Jan. 31 by Vancouver Magistrate Douglas Hume.

Wesley Edwin Smith, 25, of Williams Lake was found dead of gunshot wounds early Thursday in the driveway of his home at Williams Lake. A rifle was found nearby. Police were investigating.

Blade Seems To Have Fallen On Loyal Hand Of Chu Teh

TOKYO (AP)—Once, during Chinese communism's long march, Chu Teh was ordered to break with Mao Tse-tung. "You can no more cut me off from Mao than you can cut a man in half," he replied angrily to Chang Kuo-tao, a Communist leader who later quit the party. Now, 30 years after the declaration of loyalty, the blade seems to have fallen on 80-year-old Chu Teh.

Red Guard wall bulletins in Peking accuse him of having been Mao's enemy since 1927. His absence from important Red Guard rallies and other meetings dominated by the Mao faction in recent weeks, and refusal to credit him with being the father of the Red Army appear to add up to one thing: Disgrace at the end of an extraordinary revolutionary life.

As chairman of the standing committee of the National People's Congress, he had until the plenary session of the Communist central committee last August been regarded as one of the four top men of China. His name was always bracketed with those of Mao, President Liu Shao-chi and Premier Chou En-lai.

The Red Guard posters said Chu fought Mao's leadership 40

Bell Island Hopes Raised

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Premier Joseph Smallwood, in his annual Newfoundland economic review, Thursday held out new hope for Bell Island, predicted great things for Stephenville and said his province's "dignity" is at stake in Labrador.

Mr. Smallwood, who traditionally sums up past economic progress and unveils future strategy each January, told a service club.

Continental Ore Co. of New York may re-open the abandoned iron mines on Bell Island and smelt pig iron there for export. Abundant facilities remaining on the abandoned United States air force base at Stephenville could produce "an industrial community bigger in population than St. John's."

Lack of an eastward-leading road from the mineral and power resources of western Labrador inevitably will produce "economic occupation" of the territory by Quebec. The premier outlined his case for federal aid toward the cost of a 200-mile road to Goose Bay from the site of the proposed Churchill Falls power project. The cost would be about $25,000,000.

Doctor Dies After Collapse

OTTAWA (CP)—Dr. Carleton Whiteside, 66, of Victoria, B.C., who collapsed while attending the annual meeting of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada, died Thursday at Ottawa General Hospital. He was unconscious when removed to hospital after more than one hour of mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and closed chest heart massage on the floor of the convention hall. The meeting was temporarily adjourned.

HIS FOREHEAD NOT THAT LONG

OTTAWA (CP)—Revenue Minister Benson objected in the Commons today to being identified in an Ottawa newspaper photo caption as Dalton Camp, president of the Conservative party. "I would simply like to say that there is no similarity in that he hasn't got any hair," said the smiling minister. He and Mr. Camp have two of the longest foreheads in Canadian politics.

U.S. Editor 'Hanoi-Picked'

CHICAGO (AP)—A New York Times editor who recently returned from a visit to North Vietnam was described Thursday as a "Hanoi-picked correspondent" by the retiring press chief of the U.S. defence department. Arthur Sylvester, who earlier this month resigned as assistant secretary of defence for public affairs, made the remark in an address to the Chicago Headline Club.

"As a professional newspaper man, I was appalled when the Times published propaganda statistics concerning alleged civilian casualties on its front page, without attribution of any kind," said Sylvester.

Describing Harrison Salisbury, assistant managing editor of The Times, as a "Hanoi-picked correspondent," Sylvester asked: "Was it true... that the United States had never announced any attacks against military targets at a key transportation and logistics centre called Nam Dinh?"

"It was not true, but New York Times editor raised a question. And so the American public and the world was misled by Communist propaganda which cleverly took in the Times lock, stock and barrel."

Sylvester paid tribute to the general quality of war coverage by American reporters, citing their "great courage and dedication."

In New York, The Times said it had no comment on Sylvester's address.

On an hour-long television panel discussion in New York Wednesday night, Salisbury said he did not go to Hanoi to "support the Pentagon" in what he called "propaganda absurdities." He said that until he reported on the casualties and damage in civilian areas of North Vietnam, the Johnson administration had maintained not only that civilians were not targets of U.S. aerial bombing, but that they were not being hit.

He said the reason that North Vietnam granted him a two-week visa to visit the country was that they hoped "to use me as a propaganda tool." He denied he had served Hanoi's interests.

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Dairy Farmers of Canada gave notice Thursday that Federal Agriculture Minister Green's announcement to hold milk subsidy levels to those of last year—$90,000,000—won't be accepted without a fight. Agreement to oppose the move came in a resolution at the farmers' annual meeting here.

RESIDENT RETURNED WINNIPEG (CP)—George R. McLaughlin of Benavon, Ont., was re-elected president of the Dairy Farmers of Canada at the group's convention Thursday. Among the new directors elected was J. C. Branwick of Rosedale, B.C., who replaces A. D. Rundle of Chilliwack.

TAX POSSIBLE EDMONTON (CP)—The prospect of a provincial sales tax reared its head again Thursday during a meeting between the Alberta cabinet and representatives of the cities of Edmonton, Calgary, Lethbridge, Red Deer and Medicine Hat. Mayor Vince Dauter said the subject of a sales tax was discussed and the cabinet asked officials what they thought of it.

Gulls Take WHL Bucks

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Three goals within six minutes early in the first period gave the local place San Diego Gulls a 3-1 upset victory Thursday night over Portland, Western Hockey League leaders.

The win, before 4,862 fans, was San Diego's first in seven tries this year against the Bucks and also broke a five-game losing streak for the Gulls.

Portland's Alain Caron opened the scoring but Jim Watson tied it up for San Diego a little more than a minute later.

Fred Hilt's goal on a break-away at 8:27 put San Diego ahead, and less than three minutes later, Len Ronson gave the Gulls a two-goal cushion.

The second and third periods were scoreless.

San Diego goalie Les Binkley and Portland's Don Head came up with numerous saves to curtail scoring after the initial outburst. Head made 24 stops and Binkley 26.

STUDENTS AT SERVICE COURSE

School authorities were disappointed with the attendance this week at a tractor service and maintenance course held at the B.C. Vocational School in Kelowna.

Only four men turned out for the course. A similar course, scheduled to begin Monday, may have to be cancelled. E. W. McCann-nel, instructor in machinery repair at the B.C. Vocational School in Dawson Creek, conducted the five-day course. Here the students examine a

There's Room in the Lots Alderman Tells Chamber

There is no shortage of downtown off-street parking spaces, a city alderman says. The problem is how to get people to rent them.

The chamber may make parking and traffic the subject of the general monthly meeting in February.

The list showed there were 103 two-hour parking spaces available at the arena parking lot (less 23 unusable due to the museum construction) and 169 all-day parking spaces at the Kelowna Yacht Club area, at Water Street and Doyle Avenue.

Crown Witnesses Don't Show; Two Men Freed From Jail

Two men, who have been in custody in Kelowna for several weeks, were released today on their own recognizance, when the Crown was unable to produce witnesses from the crime detection laboratory at the Coast.

Neil David Kiene and Harry Clifford McKinnon, both of Kelowna, are facing charges of breaking and entering Lupton Agencies, Shops Capri, and in the case of Kiene, the Kelowna Yacht Club also.

Crown prosecutor, RCMP Const. Lorne Newson, said the witnesses may not be available for a month. An adjournment was granted to Feb. 8 and bail was set at $5,000 for Kiene and $1,000 for McKinnon.

Donald Wayne Ball, no fixed address, was given a three-month jail term on a charge of theft of gasoline. On a similar charge, Ronald Anderson, no fixed address, was fined $100, in default, two months. His driver's licence was suspended for three months, consecutive to a current suspension.

Irene Silver, Rutland, was fined $35 on a charge of being intoxicated in the lobby of the Willow Inn Hotel, Thursday at 5:30 p.m.

More Patrols Gain Support

A request from the Kelowna and District Safety Council for increased highway patrols gained support Wednesday.

A letter was received from the B.C. Safety Council saying the provincial government favored the idea of more RCMP officers for highway duty. The writer said the suggestion would go before the special traffic safety section and, if approved, would go to the board of directors. The Kelowna branch will be kept informed.

The Kelowna and District Safety Council agreed, at a December meeting, to ask the provincial council to submit a brief to the government on the need for increased highway and road patrols.

The Kelowna council pointed out the deterring effect the sight of a patrol car has on drivers. The council also said patrols had not increased in proportion to the increase in traffic and to the new roads opened.

Govt. Aid Wanted

Help in setting up farm labor accommodation will be sought from the provincial and federal governments.

Delegates to the BCFGA meeting here adopted a resolution seeking the assistance Thursday after they were told a federal-provincial agreement exists which provides for negotiation of some financial aid to the farmer.

John Kosty of Vernon said farmers in Ontario receive up to the $150 per accommodation unit provided for farm help. A varied form of the scheme is in effect in Alberta.

Lack of accommodation for orchard workers was seen as a big factor in the shortage of pickers during harvest; particularly in the North Okanagan regions.

In another move to ease the situation, growers asked that restrictions on the immigration of qualified agricultural workers be withdrawn.

Agricultural, particularly orchard workers, are considered unskilled laborers and as such are heavily restricted from entering Canada.

Other resolutions adopted at the final session of the three-day convention included calls for a starting control program by the provincial government and a continuation of the mouse and gopher control program.

RUTLAND BOYS WIN TROPHY IN FRUIT-JUDGING COMPETITION

Two Rutland boys have won the J. R. J. Stirling Memorial Trophy as the winning team in the annual junior fruit-judging competition.

Blaine Sakamoto, 15, and Dennis Husch, 17, were presented the trophy in a special ceremony at the BCFGA convention in Kelowna Thursday.

Accompanying the boys was their teacher at Rutland Secondary School, Gerald Geen.

School Rules Must Be Obeyed

Within the school, a student has few rights—he must obey school authorities, a Kelowna lawyer told a school counsellors' seminar Thursday.

Brian Weddell spoke about school and the law to more than 50 delegates attending an afternoon seminar on the role of the school counsellor.

"Everyone has equal rights under the law, but students have a more regulated status than private adults," Mr. Weddell said.

The Public Schools Act stipulates a student must conform, obey and study diligently. He must do as he is told—that includes the way he dresses and the length of his hair, the lawyer said.

NOT PROTECTED: Discussing the role of school counselling and the law, Mr. Weddell said confidences between a student and a school counsellor are not protected by law.

The only legally protected privilege is that of a client to his lawyer. Everyone else, if called before a court, can be forced to reveal any "confidential" information, he said.

Mr. Weddell warned counsellors that records of conversations with students, and comments by the counsellor, should be written carefully because they could be used as the basis for a libel or slander action against the counsellor.

He suggested counsellors should contact other agencies when they are in doubt about a situation. The school board, department of labor, welfare agencies, family court and police can help counsellors.

BE DISCREET: School counsellors should exercise discretion when they are asked for confidential information.

If you are approached by a welfare official or a probation officer, find out why the information is wanted, Mr. Weddell said.

But the RCMP, in the course of an investigation, have the right to go anywhere to speak to someone.

"If the police come to the school to see a student, you must permit the interview. You can insist on being present, but then the police will take the student to the station alone," Mr. Weddell said.

Workshop On Recreation Scheduled Here In February

The community programs branch of the department of education will sponsor an Okanagan-Similkameen recreation activity workshop in the Dr. Knox Secondary School Feb. 17, 18.

The workshop is an annual event and was attended last year by 150 people. Registration is open to anyone concerned with group activities, playground supervisors, those working with amateur sport groups or representing any organization.

Registration will take place Feb. 17 at the school at 6 p.m. Classes will begin the same day from 7 to 10 p.m. and continue Feb. 18 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Anyone wishing to attend must register in advance by mailing an application to Jon MacKinnon, recreation consultant, Court House, Kelowna.

Each candidate is advised to register for one course only, approximately 10 hours of instruction.

COURSES: Courses being offered include dressmaking, millinery, bobbing, makeup, philosophy of coaching, rock collecting, personal grooming, physical recreation activities, pottery and folk singing.

Two Kelowna instructors are among those giving courses. Mrs. S. A. MacQuillan will offer instruction in the making of hats from the band outward, and also renovation of existing headpieces. Mrs. Una Hughes, active in local theatre groups, will instruct in the use of make-up in community events.

Mrs. Belva Rimbey, Westbank, will teach the Bishop method of dressmaking, the mass production factory method as applied to individual patterns.

The hobby crafts, given by Mrs. Louise Maskell, Kamloops, will include copper, leather and "garbage" crafts.

Jack Armour, Vancouver, will instruct in the philosophy of

Resolution To Inform Growers Gets Green Light From Parley

The man who weathered much of the crop insurance storm during convention sessions this week, was voted out of his seat on the BCFGA executive Thursday.

H. W. Byatt of Oyama was defeated by Hubert Pierlot of Vernon in the only change made in last year's executive.

Mr. Byatt was chairman of the BCFGA crop insurance committee and had presented the committee report to delegates Wednesday.

The report outlined the proposed crop insurance scheme and strongly urged growers to support it.

Mr. Byatt said the scheme is flexible and can be changed next year but because of the time factor we must present it as it is now.

The report sparked both strong criticism and praise of the scheme.

In replying to thanks for his service on the executive, Mr. Byatt said much of the problem "is doing what you think is right for the whole."

"Some times in doing this you alienate your own area," INFORM: During the evening session Thursday, a late resolution asked that the executive inform all growers of recent changes in the crop insurance plan.

And said the resolution, "urge them to consider taking out coverage immediately."

The resolution was unanimously adopted.

Re-elected to the executive from their respective areas were S. J. Land of Okanagan Centre, W. A. Ritchie of Caston, J. M. Kosty of Vernon, John Bullock of Kelowna, Charles Bernhardt of Summerland and John Hall of Erickson.

There should be a continuous counselling program, progressing from one grade to the next;

Counsellors should have clerical help so they can spend more time evaluating students and discussing problems with them.

Mr. Wood, who says he spends about three-quarters of his school time at his counselling tasks, said counsellors should spend some time teaching so they are familiar with the classroom situation.

There are seven counsellors at the secondary school. Some have heavier teaching loads than others.

Mr. Wood admitted he felt "inadequate" to deal with personal and emotional problems of students.

This area is better handled by a psychologist than a counsellor because the average counsellor is not well enough trained to handle such problems, Mr. Wood said.

Counsellors take basic guidance courses as well as special courses in psychology, testing and mental health.

A background of education courses plus counselling courses and an infectious enthusiasm for education were the qualifications Mr. Dedinsky looked for in choosing counsellors for his school.

LIKELY REMAIN: This situation will likely remain until the provincial government spends more money on counselling services, he said.

Bridging the gap between school and the outside world is one area where counsellors are not doing an adequate job, Mr. Wood said.

Mrs. DeHart said counsellors do not know enough about post-secondary institutes. The universities should send representatives to schools to keep counsellors up to date and to speak directly to students, she said.

CHAMBER BRIEFS

The Kelowna Chamber of Commerce has been asked to help locate a replacement for Mayor Lionel Mercer of Vernon, who is soon to resign as chairman of the proposed Shuswap Canal project.

Chamber executive members expressed concern Thursday over possible parking problems and long waiting lines-up when the Confederation Train arrives here at 8:45 a.m. Feb. 7 for a two-day stay. One chamber member said some people waited four hours to view the exhibits in Victoria.

GROWERS DEBATE RESOLUTIONS

'Now Tell Us How To Sell More'

By TERRY STEWARD

Some B.C. orchardists aren't too impressed with the increasing emphasis being placed on productivity.

"We keep striving towards increased crop production," said Hans Stoll of Summerland Thursday, "but the returns get less."

Aked delegates attending the final day of the BCFGA convention in Kelowna said they were always being told how to produce more.

John Kiene of East Kelowna described the situation as like "having to run to stand still."

Both growers, with fellow delegates at the convention, were embroiled in discussions of several resolutions, all of which were prompted by the cost of production as compared with financial return.

The convention adopted a resolution calling for provincial government help in establishing a realistic floor price for tree fruits.

"This floor price would be based on our average cost of production," said the resolution's sponsor Phil Workman Jr. of Nanaimo.

Delegates speaking in support of the resolution said a floor price would allow growers to operate a business and if it were a business, "we wouldn't be losing to many orchards."

Possible methods of increasing grower returns were also set out in another resolution sponsored by Vernon delegates.

The motion asked that BCFGA representatives and delegates be asked to conduct a survey of the which growers reduction in packing costs and that "less many northern areas while in the same store $1 will buy 10 pounds of bananas."

Reference was also made to resistance of fruit costs by consumer groups.

LOYALTY? Hubert Pierlot of Vernon said "it is questionable the wholesaler is loyal to us" and suggested maybe "we should get into the field ourselves."

He said the cost-price spread could mean the growers are being forced out of business on the matter of one cent a pound.

"We have increased production but it has not helped," he added.

R. B. Foxgood unsuccessfully moved to have the resolution tabled saying if the board "didn't satisfy the men at B.C. Tree Fruits aren't doing all they can to get returns, then they should find someone who will."

However, in spite of doubts about how much good productivity is helping the grower, a resolution seeking authorization for BCFGA experimentation aimed at better production was adopted by delegates.

The experimentation, the unknown cost of which concerned some delegates, would be in the form of experimental orchard projects utilizing modern grower plantings.

Proposing the resolution was Hans Rheimsch of Keremeos who said "there are many areas of growing which we haven't touched on in experimental work."

He said he felt sure the projects could "carry themselves" and would not overlap research work being done by government agencies.

Other resolutions adopted at the Thursday session included one aimed at obtaining road tax-free gasoline for B.C. farm vehicles and another requesting government purchase of suitable agricultural land so it can be preserved as such and leased to farmers.

Also adopted was a resolution calling for a study by the BCFGA apple committee of all aspects of McIntosh variety in an attempt to determine how more can be sold on the fresh fruit market.

The resolution said the Valley average of "process grade" and "juice grade" McIntosh apples has, in recent years, "made it questionable whether they should be grown."

A resolution calling for a national fruit board to represent all fruit growers in Canada was tabled until a report expected soon in Ottawa is received.

Several chambers in the Valley will be holding installation dinners including Westbank, Feb. 7; Vernon, Thursday, Winfield Friday, Summerland Feb. 2 and Pentlitz Saturday. Chamber representatives will try to attend the meetings.

The annual meeting of the Kelowna Boat Racing Association has been set for Tuesday and the chamber was asked to send an executive member.

Roger Cottle said the junior chamber of commerce is looking for new members and he pointed out the training available in parliamentary procedure which could help junior executives.

F. F. M. Hill, president of the Westbank and District Chamber of Commerce, said his chamber hopes to begin a junior achievement program soon in Westbank schools. R. J. Stranks offered his help as a former instructor.

A letter was read from the British Columbia Dragons announcing two dances to be held to help raise money for a 100-mile dinner setting. The first will be held in the armory Feb. 11 and the second in March.

Diefenbaker Beats Camp On The First Salvo

Conservative Leader Diefenbaker has suddenly called for a party leadership convention at the earliest possible moment. It cannot be considered a coincidence that Mr. Diefenbaker's call came just a few days before the dates of a meeting of the party's national executive at which such convention dates are to be decided.

Mr. Diefenbaker's play was little more than window-dressing, an attempt to embarrass and steal the limelight from his second-best (the first being Mr. Pearson) enemy, the Conservatives' national president, Dalton Camp. And he has succeeded in doing just that. As far as the public is concerned, when the dates are announced, it will be done so as a result of Mr. Diefenbaker's call, not on the instructions of the party convention last November.

Among other things Mr. Diefenbaker is quoted as saying in his statement: "I have never in the past, and I shall not now desert the course of a lifetime, of at all times upholding principle and standing for those things which in my opinion are good for Canada, for the people of this nation."

Those are laudable words as would be expected of Mr. Diefenbaker. However the key words are "in my opinion." No one questions Mr. Diefenbaker's patriotism; it is admitted he has been a great Canadian. Nevertheless there are many, many Canadians of his own as well as other political parties who would quarrel with his concept of what is "good for Canada, for the people of this nation."

Mr. Diefenbaker's concept, obviously, is that "the good of Canada" demands that he remain as leader of the Conservative party. Most Canadians, we believe think differently: "the good of Canada" demands that Mr. Diefenbaker resign quickly and let the Conservative party reorganize so it can again become an effective force in Canadian affairs. It is probable that the majority of Conservatives feel this way. Certainly the Conservative convention last fall, despite Mr. Diefenbaker's efforts to forestall it, voted to take a long, hard look at the party's leadership, which meant Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership.

In his statement Mr. Diefenbaker also is quoted as saying he would fight against the party becoming "the plaything or the puppet of a powerful few." In this, of course, he is to be commended. It is no secret that he thinks Mr. Dalton Camp is backed by the "Bay Street boys," the Toronto financial people, who wish to control the party. This may be so; we would not know.

But Mr. Diefenbaker has clearly shown the tactics he will use in his fight to retain the leadership—which he has strongly, but not definitely, indicated that he will attempt to do. He will present himself as Saint George fighting the Bay Street dragon. He will be on a fine white charger and his suit of mail will be spotlessly white. Doubtless he will take as his pattern a TV commercial in which the shining knight miraculously slays the dirt. In Mr. Diefenbaker's case, if he has his way, the dirt will be Bay Street.

"I want to see Canadians, rank and file Conservatives, coming together, democratically chosen, having the right to be heard," he is quoted as saying.

If Mr. Diefenbaker means this, he might listen. If he would forget his own ego just long enough to listen, he would quickly learn that there is a strong tide flowing among the people, the rank and file Conservatives included, against his leadership.

But Mr. Diefenbaker will not listen; he is too full of his own conviction that he is a man of destiny.

"I have fought for unity within this party over the years. I am always willing to compromise personal feelings, as long as the principle is not sacrificed." He is quoted as saying that.

If Mr. Diefenbaker is sincere; if he wants unity in the party, he can achieve that objective in a major degree by resigning from the leadership quickly; or at least announcing his intention of not contesting the leadership at the forthcoming convention. Should he run, and should he be elected, he will lead a deeply divided party. Without him in the arena, the party could start with a clean sheet under new leadership and regroup its forces.

Should Mr. Diefenbaker run and be defeated, it would be a tragedy. He is too fine an old warrior to suffer this humiliation. Yet this may be just what he personally is forcing his party to do. Maybe he wishes to become The Great Martyr.

1759 And All That

The Printed Word

One of the near banks, so called, recently published a pamphlet or folder which mentions "some highlights in the chronological history of Canada." It mentions a lot of things, all the way from Champlain's first permanent settlement in 1608 at Quebec. It does not mention any British connection in that part of the world at that time.

Curiously, or perhaps it isn't so curious, the compilers of these highlights, like some others mentioned in The Printed Word last year, must have decided that the Battle of the Plains of Abraham in 1759 was not a worthwhile item to include. The reason for this is either an amazing oversight or a deliberate intention to placate further all French Canadians who do not like to be reminded that Imperial France lost the battle, that the victorious army was the one headed by Sir James Wolfe, who died, and that the defeated army was headed by Montcalm, who also died in the fight.

There is nothing disgraceful in this episode but it certainly is disgraceful that Canadians do not remember one of the most important battles ever fought in North America, and indeed one of the most important in the history of the world—a decisive one. It may have been as important as the battle fought in 1066 when King Harold lost his life and the Duke of Normandy took over the country from a defeated foe.

The Battle of the Plains of Abraham ended the ambitions of people who had been trying to set up in North America a French regime under a European continental power. Through good luck or good management or bad luck and bad management the British forces under the command of Wolfe terminated the aspirations of France in the northern part of this continent and eventually brought about the sale of Louisiana to the government of the new nation of the United States of America at a price that was easy for that new country to bear.

There are at the present time a number of people in Canada who are so anxious to forget all history that the feelings of descendants of French settlers in Canada that they are willing to forget what took place in 1759.

One of the things that took place was that the settlers in what was then New France were abandoned, deserted by the survivors of the French establishment. The present descendants of the French people in Canada are, with exceptions, descendants of settlers, farmers and others, who had little or nothing to do with the battle.

ST. GEORGE AND THE TWO-HEADED DRAGON

In Spite Of Safety Drive Hunting Deaths Were Up

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

In the face of stepped-up safety programs in most provinces, Canada had a bad year for hunting fatalities in 1966.

With figures from some provinces not yet complete, a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows that the shooting toll in the woods rose to at least 78 from the 61 of 1965. It was the longest death list since 82 persons were killed in 1961. The worst year in modern times was 1960 with 94 deaths.

Six provinces showed worsened figures in 1966 by comparison with the previous year. Two—Saskatchewan and Alberta—improved. Prince Edward Island remained fatality-free for the fourth straight year, and Nova Scotia also was unchanged with four deaths.

Newfoundland's six was believed a record. Quebec's toll of 25, almost one-third the national total, was up eight from 1965 and just one below the province's 1961 top. New Brunswick, with seven deaths, equalled its record mark of 1954 and 1960. Ontario's 13 was up two during the year and one below the high mark of 1964.

The known toll by provinces with 1965 figures in brackets: Newfoundland, 6 (2); N.S., 4 (4); N.B., 7 (5); P.E.I., 0 (0); Quebec, 25 (17); Ontario, 13 (11); Manitoba, 4 (3); Saskatchewan, 5 (7); Alberta, 4 (5); B.C., 10 (7).

MORE HUNTERS OUT
Larger numbers of hunters probably contributed to the enlarged toll. While final figures are not in, sale of hunting licences generally appeared up. Ontario alone issued about 700,000, up 18,000. Registrations for moose hunters in Quebec jumped 6,000 to 50,000. In that province, three teams of government firearms experts travelled about in 1966 teaching proper use of guns in the hope of reducing the accident rate. Early this year the fish and game department said it hopes to raise the number to 11. Starting this year also, all Quebec hunters will be required to pass an examination on shooting and safety procedures before getting permits. If effective, this will be continued in future years.

In other provinces, government safety measures consisted of continuance of existing programs, usually with the tempo intensified.

Only major new legislation during the year was passed in British Columbia, where provision was made for compulsory examination of licence applicants under 18. The legislation has not yet been implemented. B.C. also reported that a seven-year junior firearms safety program in co-operation with sportsmen's groups has been graduating an average 2,500 persons under 18 yearly and that the previous high incidence of accidents in this age group is falling.

KILLS REPORTED GOOD

Though reports on kills are far from complete, preliminary figures indicate a generally good year of bags, especially in the west. British Columbia officials expected the season to come close to the province's best year of 1963. They estimated the moose kill at 20,000, up 5,000; caribou at 650, up 250, and deer at 70,000, up 5,000. Ducks at 475,000 and geese at 625,000 would be about average.

No bag figures were available for Alberta, but officials said the wild waterfowl season was generally better than last season. However, upland game—pheasant, partridge and grouse—showed no more than a good recovery from a 1964 spring storm blamed for heavy deaths of young, with pheasants remaining scarce. There were no official estimates on big game hunting.

Saskatchewan reported one of its best years for deer and a successful moose season. Duck shooting has been good, though mallards have been "limited."

Manitoba reported the upland game season exceptionally good and the duck season fairly good by comparison with 1965. Deer were down but the early elk season was "far more successful" than 1965. An average season for moose was reported.

ONTARIO IS AVERAGE

Ontario was having about an average season. The deer kill had prospects of slight improvement over 1965, when 35,000 were taken. The same applied to moose, of which 15,000 were killed in 1965. Waterfowl hunters about held their own. Pheasant was probably down, perhaps because of urban encroachment.

Partial figures for Quebec, which will not have final reports until March, showed kills of 7,715 moose reported, compared with 8,898 in 1965; 116 caribou compared with 119, and at least 7,491 deer bagged.

New Brunswick officials said unusually mild weather last fall could have caused a decrease in the kill of deer by sending them to localities unfamiliar to hunters. The deer kill has been running between 18,000 and 20,000. The year's moose kill was expected to peak 600 compared with 314 in 1965 as the result of removing a ban on shooting females.

No figures were available for Nova Scotia, but one official estimated the game take would be down.

Prince Edward Island has no bag game. The bag waterfowl dropped with an abundance of food offshore kept birds from coming close to the shoreline.

Personally Speaking

By VEN. D. S. CATCHPOLE, B.A., D.D.

PAY ALONG WITH MITCH

By the time these profound thoughts reach my clanging readers, the mini-budget will probably have been forgotten in the turmoil of anticipation of the spring when news of fresh financial disasters will be relayed to the taxpayers.

In the meantime, and speaking personally of course: "Love that Mitchell Sharp!" In response he has a face like a rugby ball but when he smiles he makes me feel that I can be quite happy about paying his taxes. Were I not such a dyed-in-the-wool Tory, almost he persuades me to be a Liberal!

For here, no matter what the gripping opposition may say, is a man who makes it abundantly plain—and at once—to those howling for socialist improvements that if they want these things they must pay for them. If we had a few more of such men as the minister of finance we should not be in such a mess as we are in today.

I am always intrigued with those people who love to obtain favours for the poor and have the reputation for being do-gooders to the unfortunate and who love, at the same time, to leave others to pay the bill. I had an aunt like that once. She would go to a shop and buy a delightful present for someone and then write around to the members of the family to pay for it.

She got the credit and the glory for being thoughtful and kind and the rest of the family paid for the present. I don't think that Mitchell Sharp is Scrooge any more than I think he is Santa Claus.

He is merely being realistic and is saying to screaming Mr. Douglas: "Okay, brother! Let's give hard-up pensioners another $30 a month. I agree. But don't squawk when you have to pay for it." I think, then, that Mr. Douglas for yet another time would be forced to sit down speechless. He is realistic and he doesn't beat about the bush.

Ever since I can remember, taxes have been a source of blasphemous language and for the very good reason that tax-paying is painful. Years ago, in the Fraser Valley, the priest in charge of the mission near us was so moved by the demands of the government that he said to my father: "Damn those taxes! Oh, excuse the swear-word!" It has been said that two things are absolutely unavoidable, namely death and taxes.

We do not howl about death; why should we howl about taxes? When I see what some people will buy—indeed, when I see what I will buy and do not absolutely need—I think that both they and I must expect to hand over a proportion in addition for the use of unfortunates.

Have the consumers of beer and spirits ever considered the futility of buying these when, as a charming and exasperated lady remarked to me: "It all ends up in a certain receptacle (only she did not use that polite term)!" Should not people who indulge in this sort of thing pay for the privilege, if privilege it be?

Perhaps I am biased. After all, at the beginning of 1966 I shall be entitled to a pension, so all you darlings will be helping to pay for it just as I have been paying for other people's pensions for years, one way or another.

I remember that my parents had no pension of any kind although they lived well into their eighties; but I feel no sense of living on charity when I think of being a pensioner. I have never said that the world owes me a living but when I have worked conscientiously all my life and when I feel (and the government agrees) that I no longer be expected to earn a salary, then it is that I say that the country owes me a means of livelihood.

That is why we have pensions. Unhappily for me, Mr. Sharp does not propose to let me off the hook but will continue to make me pay taxes (direct and indirect ones) after I retire. This is where I think there is injustice.

If a fellow is wasteful and spends his all in riotous living and does not make wise provision against the day when he retires, he gets, not only the Canada Pension, but the additional $30 a month, if he has been provident without being mean, and over a period of years has set aside a certain amount for his retirement days, then he is forced to pay taxes on what he has, and he does not get the additional $30. If I am wrong in this, income tax men, please tell me at once. I shall sleep more peacefully. I must protest against the rewarding of wastrels and the discouragement of provident persons.

I shall be glad to confer, as well as to pay along, with Mitch.

TODAY in HISTORY

Jan. 20, 1967 . . .

King George V died and Edward VIII succeeded him 31 years ago today—in 1936—at the age of 42. The bachelor King was well-known and popular in Britain but ruled less than a year. He was in love with Wallis Warfield Simpson, an American divorcee living in England with her second husband. Edward abdicated Dec. 11, 1936, when told the constitution forbade his marrying Mrs. Simpson and went to live in France as Duke of Windsor. Her divorce became absolute May 3, 1937, and they were married a month later.

Fifty years ago today—in 1917—Germans captured the fort of Fumet in Romania; British airmen bombed Baghdad; the German government sent the United States a note defending its deportations of Belgians for labor in Germany.

CANADA'S STORY

Mosquitoes Enjoyed Doukhobor Parades

By BOB BOWMAN

Canada has usually welcomed new citizens from any nation but if the clock could be turned back there is one group who would probably be prevented from entering. They are the Doukhobors who landed at Halifax on Jan. 20, 1899.

The Doukhobors were members of a Russian sect who were prevented from practising their religion. The famous author Tolstoy obtained financial support from Quakers in Britain and the U.S.A. and arranged for them to come to Canada. Every male Doukhobor was given 160 acres of land for $10, and 7,000 arrived by the end of June.

The Doukhobors were encouraged to settle in Saskatchewan and made a good impression at first. They built homes, barns, cultivated their land and looked after their cattle. Then, in July 1902, the Doukhobors in the Yorkton area began to act strangely. It is known now that an agitator from New York was circulating among them and teaching that it was sinful to wear the skin of any animal. Other edicts followed, the Doukhobors stopped eating eggs, butter and milk.

In August they turned their horses, cattle and sheep loose on the prairies saying they were "giving them to the Lord." The livestock had to be rounded up by government officials or they would have frozen to death or been killed by wild animals.

Peter Verigin, a new spiritual leader, arrived in December, and matters became worse. The Doukhobors refused to send their children to school or abide by other laws. Then they began their famous nude parades sometimes in bitterly cold weather. In January, 1908 they staged a nude parade on the streets of Fort William, Ont.

An Anglican Minister worked out a plan to discourage nude parades in the summer. He enticed the marchers into a prairie home where the doors and windows were nailed open. When night came and lamps were lit, mosquitoes came in for the feast. The Doukhobors quickly put on their clothes.

Most of the troublesome Doukhobors trekked to British Columbia where they have been a constant source of trouble, even dynamiting railways and buildings. Those who remained in Saskatchewan have been assimilated better.

OTHER EVENTS ON JANUARY 20:

1783 Britain and U.S.A. signed an armistice. Fighting stopped February 4.

1850 Captain McClure began search for lost Franklin expedition and discovered the Northwest Passage by entering from the Pacific.

1904 Federal government disallowed a B.C. act to limit immigration.

1923 Canadian National absorbed Canadian Government Railways.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Eating Pattern Can Be Changed

By DR. JOSEPH G. MOLNER

Dear Dr. Molner:

Our work day starts at 7:30 a.m. and our lunch hour is from 10 to 11 a.m., sometimes a half hour earlier. We have no choice in the matter. We must eat then when we are not hungry and feel sick for an hour or two, or not eat and feel nauseous with hunger later on.

Don't suggest bringing food in and eating at the desk. This is frowned upon. Is it possible for the human stomach to digest food properly at 9:30 in the morning?—K.N.

Some people work nights and live completely upside-down lives without harm. But it does often take a few days to readjust if the hours are changed.

You don't explain the reason, if any, that your lunch hours start at 10 a.m. or even 9:30. Maybe it has to be. Or maybe a petition to the management could bring about a change. That's out of my sphere.

It does seem that you may still be able to work out some sort of eating pattern that will suit you better.

Do you have a coffee break?

If so, maybe a husky breakfast and then a sandwich on the coffee break would keep you from feeling either starved or stuffed.

Physically, you can adjust safely to almost any halfway reasonable schedule, but regularity is important to most of us, once the schedule is set.

Dear Dr. Molner: You wrote about the possible dangers of eating pork which is insufficiently cooked. What about heavily smoked pork—sausage, etc.? Does the smoking make it safe? In most European countries smoked ham is a favorite dish.—C.H.

No, smoking does not replace proper cooking. One of our worst outbreaks of trichinosis with which I was involved was among people at a picnic who ate smoked pork sausage without cooking it.

Some European countries have, to their credit, quite effectively eliminated the trichinosis work. But this side of the Atlantic the rule of "cook pork thoroughly" is the only wise one. Thorough cooking kills the trichinae eggs. Also wash hands thoroughly after having handled uncooked pork. Otherwise you might get some of the very tiny eggs in your mouth and get trichinosis.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a torn cartilage on the inner part of my knee. Will an operation help this or would therapy treatments be better?—L.J.M.

There are too many types of knee injuries involving cartilage for me to answer this without knowing more than you have told me. You doubtless have noted on the sports pages how readily football players have such surgery when it is required. Have an orthopedist determine the nature of the injury and then tell you the surest way to repair it.

Note to "Marriage on the Rocks": Unless a psychiatrist can help you, your problem belongs to an attorney, not a doctor.

Retirement From Underhill Clinic Is Marked By Reception And Dance

A reception and dance held in the Chandelier room of the Capri Motor Hotel on Saturday evening marked the retirement of Dr. A. S. Underhill from the Underhill Clinic, which will take place on February 1 after 40 years of medical practice in Kelowna.

Dr. Underhill, who joined the Medical Corps R.C.A.M.C. in 1916, went to England in 1917, and in November of that year, as there was no Canadian Air Force at that time he transferred to the Royal Flying Corps which later became known as the R.A.F. He had five months in France as a scout pilot and returned to Canada in 1919.

In September, 1919, he entered Wesley College, following which he attended Manitoba Medical College and received his M.D. in 1926. In 1927 he moved to Kelowna and went into practice with Dr. Benjamin F. Boyce, and in 1930 he married Joyce McLeod in Grand Forks.

Dr. Walter Anderson joined Dr. Underhill in 1938, and in 1946 they were joined by Dr. J. A. Rankine. At the time the present clinic was built in 1956 there were a group of seven doctors, and the number has now increased to 13.

During his years as one of Kelowna's favorite doctors, Stan Underhill has been president of the Kelowna Medical Society; president of the Kelowna Golf and Country Club; president of the Gyro Club, active in tennis club and curling circles, and last year he was made an honorary member of the College of Physicians and Surgeons at the annual meeting of the B.C. Medical Association in Trail.

Some 75 members of the staff of the Underhill Clinic and Gant's Pharmacy, accompanied by wives or husbands, attended the retirement party at which Dr. and Mrs. Underhill were the very popular guests of honor.

Early in the evening the speeches and presentations took place. Dr. Walter Anderson presented Dr. Underhill with a portable TV set on behalf of the doctors, and Miss Joyce Denham presented him with a Polaroid camera on behalf of the clinic staff. Mrs. Joseph Steward pinned Mrs. Underhill with a lovely corsage of Sweetheart roses on behalf of the staff, and Ben Gant presented her with a beautiful bouquet of red roses and presented the doctor with a barometer on behalf of himself and the pharmacy staff.

Dr. J. A. Rankine presented the couple with an enlarged picture of the Kelowna hockey team which Dr. Underhill accompanied to Russia in 1958, on behalf of the coach, Jack O'Reilly. Mayor R. F. Parkinson then completed the ceremony by "crashing" the party and presenting the doctor with the Order of the Ogopogo and Mrs. Underhill with a silver City spoon.

Dancing took place to the music of John Descher's orchestra and a highlight of the evening was a hilarious topical skit presented by Dr. J. A. Rankine and Dr. Alan McIntosh.

The skit was a take off on "This is Your Life" and featured the ever present cigar among other amusing incidents. A delicious smorgasbord supper was served at midnight.

Dr. and Mrs. Underhill have two daughters living on the westside of the Okanagan Lake. Doreen, Mrs. Russell Ensinger, and Lois, Mrs. R. J. Bennett, and they have seven grandchildren.

Volunteer Bureau Plans Workshop

The Volunteer Bureau Committee made final arrangements at their meeting on Wednesday for a one-day workshop to be held on February 25 to study the role of the volunteer in the community.

Mrs. Bazan of Vancouver will be the chief speaker and resource person through the day's session, and Bishop Scott will speak at the dinner in the evening. Mrs. Bazan has had a great deal of experience in working with volunteers and this workshop should prove of interest and help to all those who are—or are considering—giving some time to their community.

The date is February 25—all day. The place is the Capri Motor Hotel. If you are interested phone the Community Information Service, 2-3608.

The Volunteer Bureau and the Community Information Services are services provided by the Kelowna and District Community Chest.

SALLY'S SALLIES

Styles Are Exotic Colors Dazzling

LONDON (Reuters) — British fashion designer Norman Hartnell and Paris hair dresser Alexandre — who list queues among their clients—combined talents today to produce a spring show of exotic style and dazzling color.

Hartnell, who dressed Queen Elizabeth, relegated refinement to a backseat in his plush collection. He pulled out all the fashion stops to present huge, tent coats in sizzling pinks and oranges, and high-waisted dresses in two tone-combinations which just cleared the knee.

His flowing, empire-line evening gowns clanked with beading and mistled with sequined embroidery.

His new business associate, elegant Alexandre, who numbers Queen Frederika of Greece and Princess Muna of Jordan among his clients, collaborated with milliner Simone Mirman to produce novel wig-hats-cloches of false hair covered in clutches of false hair covered in clutches of false hair.

For more exotic effect, he wound ropes of turquoise beads around high-piled curls, coiled hundreds of metal strips into a giant silver wig, and elevated a foot of raven hair to make a coat-of-arms cap.

Mr. Easy, I'm afraid there's been a misunderstanding.

Mrs. W. D. Walker Honored Wednesday On 90th Birthday

Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Upton were "At Home" on Wednesday from 3-9 p.m. in honor of the 90th birthday of Mrs. Upton's mother, Mrs. W. D. Walker.

Many old timers were among the more than 70 friends who signed the guest book despite the heavy snowfall, and wires from friends throughout Canada, presents, and gorgeous arrangements of flowers and plants were the order of the day including a letter and silver spoon from the Kelowna city council.

Mrs. Walker, who received her friends wearing a long black velvet dress with sheer lace sleeves complemented with a corsage of white gardenias, received from a friend in Kamloops, enjoyed every minute of her birthday, and was particularly delighted when Neil Halisey, principal of the Dorothea Walker School arrived accompanied by two small students to present her with a birthday card from her namesake school and stayed on to enjoy tea and slices of the superb birthday cake.

Dorothea M. Thomson arrived in the Okanagan in 1882. In those early days she was known for her expert horsemanship and used to ride back and forth to the small school, at what is now known as the Ellison district, where she was the first teacher. In 1904 she married the late William Dalziel Walker, who had arrived in the Okanagan 10 years earlier, and in 1911 they moved into their home on the Lakeshore in Okanagan Mission where her wonderful garden soon became renowned as a showplace throughout the Okanagan.

Known for her gracious hospitality throughout the years Mrs. Walker has regaled many visitors and friends with fascinating anecdotes about the early days in Kelowna when trips up the lake to dances at Penticton were enjoyed on the ferry boats and paper chaises, coyote hunts, cricket matches and later polo provided the residents with entertainment. She has three children, William, John Dalziel Walker of Victoria, Mrs. D. Innes Pocock of Montreal, and Mrs. Terence Bligh Upton of Okanagan Mission, and seven grandchildren.

ANN LANDERS

Some People Just Need Somebody To Listen

Dear Ann Landers: I am a Chicago cab driver and, believe me, hating in Chicago is a tough way to make a buck. But the worst part of the job isn't the driving, it's the people who get into the cab and right away they want to tell you their troubles.

Yesterday I had a lady who was going to the airport. She started to tell me a long story about her husband running around with a girl who works in his office. She got so worked up that she hit me on the back with her purse and hollered, "How do you like that for an old goat with grandchildren?"

Finally I said, "Look, Mrs., why don't you write to Ann Landers and let me drive this cab?"

She yelled, "I DID write to Ann Landers and she told me I need to talk to somebody about my problem so I am talking to you."

Now I know you don't mean for people to tell their troubles to cab drivers. What you mean is they should talk to ministers or marriage counselors and like that. So please, Ann Landers, make it clear to the folks who write to you. Much obliged.—BIG RED

Dear Red: People who tell their troubles to cab drivers don't want advice. They just want somebody to listen.

A cab driver can be the ideal person to unload on because he's a stranger, he couldn't care less about who is to blame, and the passenger will probably never see him again. So, be a good egg and listen.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I will be celebrating our 20th wedding anniversary next month. The problem is that he wants to buy me a mink coat for my anniversary and I don't want one. I am going through the change and what I need most of the time is a fan, not a fur coat.

My husband says I am being selfish. He claims that I am depriving him of the greatest pleasures a man can have—presenting his wife with something special. If you say he is right, I will consider it. May I hear from you please? —SHAKEL HEIGHTS

Dear Shaker Heights: I urge you to reconsider. Forget about yourself. Make the sacrifice. Put your husband's wishes first. Think mink. You'll be glad you let him talk you into it.

Performances Of Lynn Seymour Curtailed By Glandular Fever

LONDON (CP) — Lynn Seymour, 27-year-old Canadian ballerina who left the Royal Ballet here last fall to become leading dancer with the Berlin troupe, has returned to London for treatment of an ailment which is likely to curtail her performances indefinitely.

Miss Seymour is suffering from glandular fever, a debilitating illness that requires lengthy rest and convalescence. She is staying at the home of Georgina Patterson, a British dancer and long-time friend at the Royal Ballet.

Speaking by bedside telephone today, Miss Seymour said she first began noticing symptoms of fatigue and nausea about six weeks ago in Berlin. When the symptoms failed to clear up, she flew to London late last week to consult a specialist who had previously treated her for thyroid trouble.

He ordered her to bed but could give no indication of how long she must remain there.

Miss Seymour said she is in frequent contact with Berlin by telephone. "It's chaos there, I gather, because everyone has to be shuffled into new roles."

She had already begun preparation for a new production of Tchaikovsky's Sleeping Beauty and said she still hopes to take part in the premiere, scheduled for May.

Daughter of a Penticton, B.C., dentist, Miss Seymour came to London 12 years ago to train at Covent Garden and graduated to starring roles in recent years. She went to Berlin at the invitation of British choreographer Kenneth Macmillan, who had left the Royal Ballet shortly before to become ballet director at the Berlin Opera House.

New-Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloated disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

SPRING THAW PONDER'S CHARLES II'S FEMALES

This is the first year that Spring Thaw has been written by one writer (Don Harron) with original words and music all composed by the same team (Marian Grudoff and Ray Jessel). The twentieth edition has a script that pokes fun at Canadian History, from the ice-ages up until July 1, 1867. Scenes that depict Barbara Hamilton as Queen Victoria, and her problem of distinguishing between Disraeli and Sir John A., played by Peter Mews are hilarious. A ballet, basketball style, portrays the battle of the Plains of Abraham. Spring Thaw will be showing at the Kelowna Community Theatre March 4. In the above scene, Peter Mews, with Diane Nyland, Dinah Christie and Catherine McKinnon, ponders: "Now, let's see. How many mistresses did Charles II have?"

Casa Loma Looks The Part For Boris' And Gloria's Film

TORONTO (CP) — The thing about Toronto's Casa Loma is that it looks like the Hollywood idea of a castle, with its massive turrets and large wood-paneled rooms.

And with Hollywood's emphasis these days on shooting films on location, it's only natural that the castle should be the setting for scenes in two films.

Casa Loma became a Bavarian castle for Roses in December, a movie nearing completion after three years' work. And in February, Boris Karloff will use its lavish background for Graveside Story, a horror film in which he appears with Gloria Swanson.

The two movies represent one side of the considerable film activity going on in Canada—settings in this country being used by foreign film-makers.

Another example is The Trap, a British movie made in Canada about a French-Canadian trapper that was released late in 1966.

The other side of the picture is an array of films being produced by Canadians, often on a shoe-string budget. And the recent announcement of a $10,000,000 federal subsidy fund for making movies should stimulate the Canadian film industry even more.

David Sector, who made his first film for $31.88 and went on to direct Winter Kept Us Warm, has completed shooting of The Offering, a love story about a Canadian man and a touring dancer from Communist China. For this Sector raised $55,000 and persuaded the mayor of Toronto and other local celebrities to appear in the movie for nothing.

Sector's success with Winter Kept Us Warm, made while he was still a university student, has been followed by increased activity on college campuses. McMaster University in Hamilton has started a series of experimental short color movies for showing by movie clubs.

One of Sector's assistants of a couple of years ago now is making his own film. Tom Ewing figures to spend $8,000 making Picaro, a 50-minute idyll, with student actors.

Tom Kneebone and Pat Galloway, Toronto cabaret performers, have appeared in a shoe-string film which won an award at the San Francisco film festival, and Julius Kohanyi is shooting Bittersweet, described as a "slim-budget child fantasy."

The biggest production so far announced is A Great Big Thing, being made by Eric Till, a former CBC director, on a budget of nearly $1,000,000. It will be completed in New York and London.

Canada seems to have something special to offer horror-film or science fiction fans. An off-beat production of a few years ago, The Mask, probably never earned money but acquired a following, and two more fantasies, budgeted at $250,000, are in the works.

PLAN BILINGUALISM

MONTREAL (CP) — Both Rivkah Academy for Girls, now being built, and the school to be North America's only school with parallel academic programs in French and English from nursery school through Grade 12. It is planned to meet the needs of Jewish children in Quebec.

Broadcasting League Calls For Wide Conceptual Change

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Broadcasting League today called for sweeping, conceptual changes in broadcasting and its management in Canada.

In a brief to the Commons committee on broadcasting, the league suggested that there should be more public funds made available to the CBC so it would be less dependent on and influenced by commercial concerns.

The league said the Canadian Television Network should be placed in a position where it could be taken over by a public trusteeship.

The brief suggests that the BBG, rather than clinging to its traditional role as the high court of the industry, should tell the people of Canada what its detailed over-all assessments of the industry are.

The brief favors the concept of all broadcasting falling under the control of the BBG, which would have "a basic and overall responsibility for the adequate structure and functioning of the system in the public interest."

OPPOSED SALE

The league noted the Fowler committee which studied broadcasting recommended against sale of the private CTV network to its affiliate stations. But this recommendation was set aside by the BBG, which allowed the members to buy the network.

It also said the committee suggested there should be stand-by authority in broadcasting legislation for ownership and control of the private network to be placed under a form of trusteeship with representation of both private investors and the public.

"We do feel that such stand-by authority to intervene and place the second network on a semi-public trusteeship basis if it seemed necessary should definitely be provided. It is our view that time would prove this to be a desirable move and as far as we are concerned such action could be taken right away with great confidence."

"In any case the authority should be there. The principle involved here is that the airways are a property of the public and should be used fundamentally in the public interest."

The league, which groups the broadcasting views of farm organizations, labor bodies, consumer groups, and women's organizations, says its speaks for the "consumer interest" in broadcasting and plumps for "the primacy of the public sector" in all broadcasting.

In arguing for less commercial activity by the CBC, the league suggests commercials be stopped on CBC radio since they bring the corporation only a minor portion of its revenue.

It also said FM (frequency modulation) radio and the government should keep FM from succumbing to "the erosive forces of commercialism."

A copy of the league brief was released to the press in advance of its presentation.

Roy Disney Outlines Plan To Keep Empire Expanding

For more than 40 years, Roy Disney made the financial decisions for the multiple enterprises of his younger brother, Walt Disney. In an exclusive interview, the first since Walt's death, Roy Disney outlines his plans for carrying out his brother's many projects.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Even as death approached, the creative energies of Walt Disney continued to flow.

Says his brother Roy: "On the day before he died, Walt lay on the hospital bed staring at the ceiling. It was squares of perforated acoustical tile, and Walt pictured them as a grid map for Disney World, which he planned to build in Florida.

"Every four tiles represented a square mile, and he said, 'now there is where the highway will run . . . there is the route for the monorail . . .

the end. Sometimes I think he the end. Sometimes I think he drove himself too hard; you never know about those things, but maybe all the work helped bring on his death.

"But maybe he was driving against that day when he wouldn't be here to spark the ideas. He may have felt if he got the projects started, we would be able to carry on."

If that was Walt's purpose, we succeeded, Roy says his brother left enough plans for movies, television and Disneyland to occupy the company's energies for three years. And a decade may be required to transform Disney World from shadows on a hospital ceiling into an immense amusement park, and a City of Tomorrow.

Roy Disney, 73 and eight years older than his brother now has full responsibility or carrying on the entertainment empire. In his first interview since Walt's death Dec. 15, Roy commented:

"My chief thought is that I should not disturb the organization that Walt built up. I established the broad policies and now our job is to carry on . . ."

Roy Disney has firm command of company financial matters, as he did in the 40 years he and Walt operated in Hollywood.

Roy Disney was asked to comment on a variety of matters that have arisen in the wake of Walt's death.

How does he account for the sharp rise of Disney stock?

"That began before Walt died. I think it was part of a growing realism that motion picture stocks were underpriced. Our stock was selling at six times our earnings, which was ridiculously low. I thought it should be up to 12 or 15 times our earnings, and it has been rising accordingly."

What is the status of Disney World?

"Our next move is to go before the Florida legislature in April and ask for some new legislation so we can proceed in an orderly fashion. The plans are well along. The entertainment portion of the Disney World will cost about a hundred million, and we will supervise that ourselves. The City of Tomorrow could cost as much as half a billion, and we will seek help from outside industry."

"What if the Florida legislature does not provide the requested legislation?"

"Then we will have to draw back for a reappraisal."

Roy paused to reflect on the nature of Walt Disney: "He was a very practical guy. He would dream, dream, dream, but then he would come back to reality. The main thing was to get the job done. He would try for the utmost, and then he would retreat to a position he could handle . . .

"Success changes everyone, especially in Hollywood, where success is exaggerated. With Walt, I think success made him drive harder. He was always saying, in effect, 'You ain't seen nothing' yet. If he had a big success, he was eager to go on to the next one."

Book Corner

WASHINGTON (AP) — One book covered in green suede is always a best-seller in Washington. It can be found at the White House, the state department, in the homes of the Kennedys, Humphreys, McNamaras and Rusks. They call it the Green Book.

Depending on its owner, it's a status symbol, a telephone directory, an arbiter of the cocktail circuit, an etiquette guide or an instant guest list.

The Green Book is really The Social List of Washington, D.C. It's criticized, chastised, mud-died and prized. Getting in seldom hurts. Being dropped usually pinches.

One woman threatened a lawsuit because she'd told friends she would be in, and wasn't.

WHAT IT TAKES

Prerequisites for getting in include birth in a well-known family, wealth (self-made or inherited) or government or diplomatic position. Also, you must live at least part of the time in or near Washington.

This year's edition dropped a bomb when an associate justice of the Supreme Court, William O. Douglas, was deleted. Douglas, at 67, married his fourth bride, a 23-year-old, last summer.

Typically, there was no explanation for the omission. Reasons for being dropped, says the Green Book's publisher, Carolyn Hagner Shaw, generally fall into one of four categories:

Unpleasant notoriety, unpleasant divorce cases, separations where husband and wife live apart but claim the same name, and failure to answer the yearly questionnaire.

Major government office-holders, congressmen and embassy delegations — 2,000 total — are listed in one section. Some 5,000 social names comprise the bulk of the book.

Unpretentiously, all names are listed with telephone numbers, zip code, addresses of all their homes (half have at least a summer and winter residence). No one gets special treatment.

On page 251, near the bottom, is this entry:

Johnson, president of the United States and Mrs. Lyndon Baines (Claudia Taylor) Miss Lynda Bird The White House, Washington, D.C. 20500. 456-1414

Luci was not listed because she is married. Children are not included until they are of debutante age, 15 to 17.

One does not pay to be listed in the Green Book. But to receive a copy of the product, there is a $17.50 subscription price and the subscriptions are limited and carefully scrutinized. About 15,000 books are sold each year.

Mrs. Shaw, a tall, witty grandmother whose own mother started the Green Book 37 years ago, says she does not choose names herself. She says she has a board of four women, "anonymous but well thought of in Washington," to make decisions.

"I never ask why a person is taken out," she says. "I may have an idea, but I don't ask."

Soviet TV
Keeps Red

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Soviet television, like every other entertainment medium in the country, aims primarily at educating the people "in the spirit of communism."

As a result, most time is given to educational programs—reports about factory and farm life, opera, ballet, political affairs and lectures on the international situation by top Soviet commentators.

But the estimated 60,000,000 viewers in a population of 230,000,000 are not deprived of light entertainment or sport.

At the top of the sporting list on Moscow television is soccer. During the season, at least three games and probably more are televised in full each week.

Track and field events, basketball and volleyball are also well covered.

One of the favorite programs for all age groups is the Saturday night variety show Ogonyok (Little Flame). More popular still are the occasional variety programs from Eastern Europe, notably East Germany, which have a professionalism and a sophistication lacking in the Russian shows.

KIDS HAVE FAVORITE

The favorite program of younger viewers is Goodnight, Children, which goes out each night at 8 p.m. and lasts for 10 minutes. It is normally made up of fairy tales and cartoons.

Stars as such are virtually unknown because Soviet actors do not specialize in television work. Plays are usually performed by provincial repertory companies, frequently with little-known actors.

Unofficial estimates put the number of television sets in the Soviet Union at 16,000,000.

Moscow television operates for an average of eight hours a day on each of two major channels. Color television is due to be introduced this year.

Jim Fiddles
Through Years

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP)—At 95, former Canadian fiddling champion James Hirtle still likes to bend the bows and figures he could teach a lot to the younger generation of old-time fiddlers.

"I still think I could beat most of these fellows who are big names in fiddling now," he says. "It's not only how you play but the way you put it over."

Mr. Hirtle captured the national fiddling championship in Ottawa in 1926. It took him six weeks to defeat 82 other competitors.

Since 1943 he has run a fix-it shop here and says he has no plans for retiring.

A popular performer at gatherings of Dartmouth's Senior Citizens' Club, he still likes dancing and steps it off with the best of them.

Mr. Hirtle was born here in 1871 but moved to Sable Island off the coast of Nova Scotia with his family when he was a small boy. That's where he learned to read, without the aid of a teacher.

"There was a shipwreck and some books washed ashore," he recalls. "I picked them up and with the help of some people on the island who could read, I learned the words."

"The main reading course I got came from a mailing mistake when I sent to the mainland for a fiddle and got a batch of wild western stories in return — everything from Wild Bill Hickock to Annie Oakley."

STRATFORD TOURS

The Shakespearean Festival of Stratford, Ont., makes its first pre-season tour in 1967, opening Feb. 15 in Calgary.

MOVIE
highlights

There should be plenty of laughs in the movies coming to the Paramount Theatre in Kelowna next week.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Jan. 23, 24, 25, Promise Her Anything will be shown at 7 and 9 p.m., with Ireland On The Go, as an added feature.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Jan. 26, 27, 28 The Liquidator is scheduled to run at 7 and 9:10 p.m.

Saturday, Jan. 28 at 2 p.m., Freckles will be seen with special cartoons and chapter two of Lost Planet.

Promise Her Anything is a comedy about babies and catching husbands.

Harley Rummel (Warren Beatty), an art film-oriented cineamateur, who makes his daily bread directing stage movies, is immediately attracted to his new neighbor, Michele O'Brien (Leslie Caron), and, in spite of himself, to her ingratiating 18-month-old baby, John Thomas. Michele is a widow who works for the child-hating Dr. Peter Locke (Robert Cummings), the world's most noted child psychologist.

Harley is under pressure from his producer (Keenan Wynn) to come up with some block-busting money-makers. His various gimmicks are not making it in the stag reel market. His brainstorm is to use a baby to counterpoint the wilder elements in the movies. To get John Thomas as his super-star, he offers babysitting services to Michele. She, of course, is unaware of Harley's occupation.

The Liquidator is the screen version of John Gardner's best-selling novel, whose hero, Boysie Oakes, an average, harmless guy, becomes a hatchet man for British Intelligence.

Rod Taylor plays Boysie, with Trevor Howard as Mostyn, the Intelligence officer who persuades him to take on the assignment of liquidating security risks, and with the latter's attractive assistant, Iris (Jill St. John), adding romance, glamour and mystery to a tongue-in-cheek spoof on all spy dramas replete with suspenseful action, excitement and a screenful of laughs.

It all starts on the day when Boysie, British ex-Tank sergeant, sees Mostyn fighting for his life with two German agents and is completely astonished to find that he has killed the Germans with two revolver shots, apparently fired with his eyes closed. Mostyn decides that here, indeed, is a cold-blooded killer and, a few years later, when he is assigned to find, appoint and train a "liquidator," tracks down Boysie who has not gotten very far in civilian life running a sleazy cafe.

Although Boysie loathes violence and bloodshed, he cannot resist the blandishments offered him by Mostyn in the way of an "easy life" and accepts the hatchet man job, thinking he can pay a professional assassin to do the actual dirty work. But it doesn't work out that way and Boysie becomes involved in one hair-raising adventure after another, including being made the decoy of Coral, a hip-swinging enemy agent, being kidnapped and tortured in a deserted villa on the French Riviera, and making his escape in a thrill-packed chase along the mountainous Corniche.

Satellite TV
Plan Outlined

TORONTO (CP) — Michael Hind-Smith, former vice-president of programming at CTV, said Wednesday night he has been hired by Power Corp. of Canada Ltd., to pilot plans for a national satellite television network.

"The job doesn't have a title to it," he said. "But obviously it relates to the application to form a third, satellite-based TV network. And obviously the whole thing depends on the Board of Broadcast Governors hearing March 7."

The satellite proposal was put forward by Power Corp. and the late Kenneth Soble, president of Niagara Television Ltd., which operates CHCH in Hamilton. Mr. Hind-Smith said the partnership continues despite Mr. Soble's death Dec. 16.

COIN THE CASH

John Wayne's 150 movies have grossed more than $300,000,000.

BEATLE'S GAL TO VISIT U.S.

Red-haired Jane Asher, 20-year-old girl friend of Beatle Paul McCartney, talks with her mother before leaving London's Heathrow Airport. Miss Asher is en route to the U.S. for a five-month tour with the Bristol Old Vic Company. She said she had no wedding plans arranged, following her statement that she and Paul were deeply in love.

What Became Of Jane Fonda That Dear, Polite Little Girl . . .

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "What has happened to Hank Fonda's nice little girl Jane?" asked a Beverly Hills dowager.

What indeed? First Jane Fonda showed up in Playboy in the characteristic pose for that magazine: Nude.

Now she has been banned in Italy. The film she made with her husband, director Roger Vadim, The Game Is Over, was seized on a citizen's complaint that it was obscene—Italian law allows such a practice. A magistrate in Bari, Italy, ruled that it was indeed obscene and ordered trial for the film's distributor and theatre managers who showed it.

On the latter matter, Miss Fonda was mystified. Here to finish Barefoot in the Park, she commented that the Italian censors had already passed the Vadim film and it had enjoyed a good reception in Italy. She denied that it contained anything obscene.

"Vadim would not do anything that was not in good taste," said the actress, who refers to her husband by his last name.

SHE SUES

On the matter of the Playboy spread, she is more voluble. She has sued the magazine for $9,500,000, charging that printing of the seven photos showing her "almost completely nude and with her breasts exposed" was unauthorized. The suit added that "her professional career and aspirations are and will be incalculably and permanently harmed."

Miss Fonda declared that the photographs were taken by a man who sneaked on to the set when it was supposedly closed to all but a few key personnel.

"Almost every actress nowadays is faced with doing nude scenes at one time or other,"

she said. "They are usually difficult to do, because you have to stand behind two bedposts or use some other method for cover."

"In this case I decided to trust my husband to play the scene with freedom, being assured that he would protect me in the cutting room. He did just that; the nude sequence is in good taste."

"There is a world of difference between playing a nude scene in a movie which can be cut for protection and being shot in the nude by an outside photographer, especially when the result ends up in the context of a girlie magazine."

THE MONKEES A FLASH IN PAN?

SMITHS FALLS, Ont. (CP) The Monkees are popular boys around this community. The way they sing and act has made $35,000 since last September for the RCA Victor plant here, which produces all their records sold in Canada.

Manager J. P. Supple said the group's records are selling better than those of any other artist processed by the 12-year-old plant — even the Beatles, whose records used to be made there, and Elvis Presley, still a solid seller.

Mr. Supple said, however: "We don't depend solely on the Monkees—they may just be a flash in the pan."

It's A Portrait On Pinhead

BERLIN (AP)—A West Berlin art gallery says it has the smallest oil painting in the world. This portrait of the Italian poet Dante is four times smaller than the size of a match-head and can only be seen under a microscope.

Hans Joachim Babrikovski, a West German goldsmith, labored three to four minutes a day for more than six months to complete the painting.

"He worked with a highly powerful magnifying glass and a brush consisting of a single synthetic hair which broke after one stroke," Mansch said. "His eyes and hands were unable to endure more than a few moments at a time."

Peering through the microscope, one sees a white profile of the famous Italian, a green laurel wreath and a red cap.

The background is black. An eye, a mouth and a nose are all visible.

The portrait is priced at $1,700.

FM Fan-Fare

By Charles Patrick

No less than 11 nights of bookings are scheduled for Kelowna's Community Theatre between January 31 and March 22 with the kind of entertainment that should be a stimulating experience for those who read this column. It's the kind of evening competition that CJOV-FM is happy to recognize. Any entertainment that can stimulate the palates of those with individualistic taste we figure is indirectly beneficial to our own programming efforts.

Les Feux-Follets, the Montreal troupe of 65 dancers and musicians with an international reputation for folk dance and music art will perform sponsored by the Centennial Committee at the theatre on January 31. Kelowna is one of only two interior B.C. cities chosen for the 65 city Canadian tour.

Jeunesses Musicales will offer two concerts, the first being on February 8, at 7:30 p.m. at the local community theatre when the Modern Brass Ensemble will perform. Their second offering will be on March 22 when the Italian Duo piano team of Lydia and Mario Contor will be presented.

The Kelowna Rotary Club's sponsoring of the touring musical "Don Pasquale" will brighten the Kelowna stage on Feb. 17.

Closely on the heels of this will follow the University Women's Club presentation of the "Best of Barkerville" on Feb. 22 when the roary, hoary days of the B.C. Gold Rush are transmitted in the form of a musical revue based on the best offerings from the Barkerville B.C. summer show.

March 4 will be the by now very popular Spring Thaw company with their newest centennial special revue.

March 14 to 18 will be the five night run of Kelowna Musical Production's Oliver, the musical based on Charles Dicken's Oliver Twist. (By the way, if you've noticed beards sprouting on some surprising men about town, the allegation is "blame Oliver" . . . some characters in the cast apparently will be the more credible for the foliage. When short of make up artists, do it yourself?) . . . Anyway, those bookings add up to eleven nights of Community Theatre activity that we know about twixt January 31 and mid-March.

Remember when someone said, "who needs a community theatre"? Of course we could get by without it, but our community is richer because of it. We like to feel the same way about the eventual development of CJOV-FM and what it can offer its listeners.

SOUND STAGE
Turning to the CJOV-FM Sound Stage, let's take a preview look at Symphony Hall's bill of fare from this evening until Thursday evening, Jan. 26. Tonight at 9 'til 10 you'll enjoy the Boston Symphony's Anthology offering of the great composers works. Albeniz, Beethoven, Berlioz, Borodin, Debussy, Handel, Revel, Respighi, Wagner and Weber will be the composers whose work is featured.

Tomorrow evening at 8 'til 9, the Chicago Symphony performs Tchaikowsky's popular first concerto and Russian Pianist Emile Gilels is at the keyboard. I've's Fourth Symphony is featured at 9 'til 10 Monday evening with Leopold Stokowsky conducting the American Symphony Orchestra.

Tuesday evening an unusual variety concert will be heard at the same time featuring prominent saxophone and woodwind virtuoso performances in works of Ibert and others. String orchestra accompaniment will add lustre to this concert. Wednesday's Symphony Hall at 9 to 10 p.m. will be the Budapest Strings with Brahms' Piano Quintet in F Major.

Thursday the distinguished Greek woman pianist Vasso Devetzi will perform with the Moscor Chamber Orchestra with works of Mozart and Hayden.

Special shows worthy of mention are the following: Strings and Things on Sunday at 8 to 10 p.m. features a unique concert by George Beverley Shea as he sings selections based on The Ten Commandments. The musical score from the motion

Italian Cowboy To Perform As Sir Lancelot In Movie

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The role of Sir Lancelot in Warner Brothers' $12,000,000 Camelot has fallen to an Italian cowboy named Franco Nero.

The new Lancelot is a muscular, 25-year-old native of Parma who first found fame as a western hero named Django.

Nero is a determined young man who knows what he wants and is getting it. He realized at an early age that acting was for him.

His big break came when the new wave of European-made westerns struck Italy. Nero's physique suited him for the role of a gunslinger, and he was cast in the title role of Django.

"At first I didn't think I would do it," he recalls. "I considered myself a serious actor, and the thought of playing a cowboy repulsed me."

But a friend changed his mind.

"I played the role as satire, but with serious undertones. Everything was done to avoid cliches. The whole thing was played in mud, fog and rain. Instead of the usual upturned brim of western hats, mine was turned down. I even wore a long coat so that you never saw my guns until I brought them out to shoot."

FEARED ONE ROLE

Django was a hit, and Nero was sought for other westerns. He played in two more, then refused all others lest he become known as a Roman Randolph Scott.

Meanwhile Joshua Logan was seeking leads for Camelot. John Huston suggested he cast Richard Harris as King Arthur and Nero as Lancelot. Harris and Nero had appeared for Huston in The Bible as Cain and Abel, respectively.

Logan was impressed with Nero after meeting him in London, and the Italian came to Hollywood for a test.

A day before he was going to sign for another Italian film, Nero was notified he was wanted for Camelot.

THEY MAKE TOP ROCK SOUNDS

nett, Rodger Law and Bob Gaetz. McGuire, an Alberta native, got his musical start in Edmonton and adopted Kelowna as his home in 1965, after making his first tour of the Okanagan. The Rebounds are planning regular dance dates in the near future at the Royal Anne Hotel, but the group will possibly have two new faces by that time. Daniel and Law are due to leave for England early in March to pursue their careers overseas. The band's hectic period arrives in the summer, with the group playing at least two or three dates each week.

His Hobby Gains Ground

TORONTO (CP) — Max Seward, a maintenance department worker for the Toronto board of education, has a hobby that is odd but is gaining rapid popularity.

He is a lapidary or amateur jewel cutter. He fashions gems for pendants, rings and earrings for his wife and daughter and friends.

Mostly he makes cabochons—stones that are cut and polished, but not faceted—from precious stones he has picked up on rock-hunting trips during the last 20 years.

However, he is a rarity among amateur lapidaries, having the necessary skill to facet stones as well. This tricky art means cutting the gems to reflect light, a precise and complex business.

Most amateur lapidaries are rock-hounds and often they arrive at jewel-making as a means of showing off prized mineral specimens to their best advantage.

Cynthia Peat of Toronto spends as much of the winter months as she can in her cellar studying minerals with a microscope. Meanwhile her husband Jim makes cabochons.

They equipped themselves for $84 with the basic machinery—a slab and trim saw, rough and fine grinding wheels and interchangeable polishing discs.

"It's perfectly adequate for anyone just starting," says Cynthia.

Though several books on the subject are available, Cynthia and her husband taught themselves how to use the equipment. Soon they found that the accomplished amateur can cut and polish a beautiful cabochon in half an hour.

When summer comes, they plan their spare time and holidays around rock-hunting expeditions, like many other lapidaries.

NFB Plans Color Movie

MONTREAL (CP)—Filming of a 90-minute feature color movie entitled The Ernie Game, to be co-produced by the National Film Board of Canada and the Canadian Broadcasting Corp., is scheduled to begin Jan. 30 in Montreal.

The film is the second in a joint CBC-NFB centennial project. The first, Waiting For Caroline, went before the cameras earlier this month in Quebec City.

Both productions will be screened first on the national television network's Festival program.

The Ernie Game, "about a man who tries to make everybody play the game of life according to his rules," according to Toronto-born director Don Owen, will star Alexis Kanner in the male role and Judith Gault in the female lead. Both Mr. Kanner and Miss Gault are from Montreal.

Director of photography will be Jean-Claude Labrecque, also of Montreal. Shooting, entirely on location in Montreal, is scheduled to be completed in late March.

FULLBACK GETS A JOB

OTTAWA (CP)—Rick Black, outstanding fullback with Ottawa Rough Riders for the last four seasons, has taken on another job for the football club: Representative in charge of advertising and sales promotion, covering Ottawa and the Ottawa Valley. Black a native of Halifax, joined the Riders after attending Mount Allison University at Sackville, N.B., where he starred with coach Gus MacFarlane's Mounties.

Jeep Suffered And Froze But His Film A Great One

OTTAWA (CP) — Eugene (Jeep) Boyko spent 540 hours in the air, nearly lost an eye, had his fingers frozen and was scared out of his wits several times.

But the results appeared worth it as Helicopter Canada, a 50-minute, wide-screen color film, was shown here in the French and English versions Wednesday night.

It is a humorous and breathtaking look at the country as seen from a helicopter through a panavision lens.

The ability of the chopper to roll with the Bluenose II and hover yards above the lip of Niagara Falls left the audience here reeling.

At least two first nighters retired midway through the film with what appeared to ushers to be bad cases of seasickness.

Otherwise, the politicians, diplomats and bureaucrats invited to the Ottawa opening seemed to enjoy the film.

Boyko, now doing a portrait on poverty in the country, spent 18 months on the $300,000 centennial production.

He was strapped behind a specially - mounted camera in the open door of an Alouette II, a French turbine helicopter rented at $190 an hour.

RISK CRASH
The chopper nearly crashed twice in downdrafts, once when Boyko and the French pilot forgot themselves chasing a deer up an Alberta mountain, another time off Quebec City's Cape Diamond.

In the process, however, a unique picture of Canada in its 100th year of Confederation was developed.

The film was made for the National Film Board and the federal centennial commission and will be marketed internationally as well as in Canada.

The showing here marked the premiere of the French - language version, which lacks some of the wry touches in the English sound track.

Both versions show a prospector drilling alone in the bush but in the English one he is singing O Canada. In French, he's just drilling.

The amusing patter of children trying to figure out what the immense mud flats of the Bay of Fundy are is also deleted from the French version. But the film is the same in both.

TRAPPER HALTED

One sequence over a bright expanse of snow shows a fur trapper moving along in a motorized snow sled, only to have his progress stymied by an oil pipeline.

There's a snow-bound swimming pool in Montreal and a close-up of the unclad five-ton Golden Boy atop the Manitoba legislature.

A shift of jaunty Cape Breton coal miners with pit lamps winking in the dusk descends into an undersea mine.

There is a look at Quebec's giant Manicouagan power dam, whose reservoir will take seven
